In 1994, Oregon became the first state to legalize aid in dying. As a result, any individual whom two physicians diagnose as having less than six months to live can lawfully request a fatal dose of barbiturate to end his or her life. Since 1994, more than 500 Oregonians have taken their mortality into their own hands. In "How to Die in Oregon," the film maker gently enters the lives of the terminally ill as they consider whether – and when – to end their lives by lethal overdose. The film examines both sides of this complex, emotionally charged issue. What emerges is a life-affirming, staggeringly powerful portrait of what it means to die with dignity.

Americans United is grateful to Compassion & Choices Orange County, and member Roy Kobayashi, for loaning us this film.

We all look forward to seeing everyone and all are welcome. There is no charge for the film; come early for a good seat, socializing and snacks.
