"The Canary Effect: Kill the Indian, Save the Man"

Date: March 8th, 2007

Time: 8:00pm

Location: University Theater

Parking Lot 7 (South end of campus off 7th St.)

The Canary Effect takes an in depth look at the devastating effect that US policies have had on the Indigenous people of America. Using beautifully crafted imagery it presents a chilling case to what many believe is an ongoing genocide of the American Indian. Featuring interviews with some of the leading scholars and exponents of Indigenous struggles, alongside revealing insight from those who work and live on reservations today, The Canary Effect creates a link between the past and present in a unique way never before explored on film (<http://www.myspace.com/thecanaryeffect>).

"By Any Means Necessary"

Date: March 9th, 2007

Time: 8:00pm

Location: Daniel Recital Hall

Parking Lot 12 (North end of campus off Atherton St.)

"By Any Means Necessary" tells the story of the Buffalo River Dene Nation, a First Nation located in Saskatchewan, Canada, and their current legal battle with the government of Canada. In 1994, when two hunters were arrested for trespassing and illegally hunting within a government-controlled facility, the community of Buffalo River rose to the defense of the hunters. Band elders asserted that the land in question was part of their traditional lands and the treaty signed with Canada in 1906 gave them the right to use that area. Through a series of cases and appeals, a guilty verdict was finally handed down by the Canadian legal system. Determined to clear the name of the hunters, the Buffalo River Dene Nation is now attempting to charge Canada in the International Court of Justice with the breaking of their 100 year-old treaty (www.myspace.com/indianofilms).
